December 2, 2013

Dear Valued Customer,

I am pleased to inform you that on December 2, 2013, Vidacare was acquired by Teleflex Incorporated, with Vidacare surviving as a wholly-owned subsidiary of Teleflex. Teleflex is a leading provider of diagnostic and therapeutic medical devices, and surgical instruments for the hospital, pre-hospital, and specialized markets. Quality brand names you likely know that are owned by Teleflex include the Arrow, LMA, Hudson RCI, and Rusch brands, as well as the Deknatel, KMedic, Pilling, Taut and Weck brands.

The Vidacare acquisition fits Teleflex's strategy to invest in innovative products and technologies that can meaningfully enhance clinical efficacy, patient safety, reduce complications, and lower the overall cost of care. Vidacare's expertise in providing intraosseous solutions for vascular access using our EZ-IO® system, combined with Teleflex's leadership in critical care and surgery now enables us to offer a full portfolio of solutions for treating the most difficult vascular access patients.

Vidacare is committed to continuously enhancing our product technology and to providing leading edge training and education to health care professionals. We believe that as part of Teleflex family of brands we can further enhance these offerings and our partnerships as we focus on capitalizing on our complementary strengths. We look forward to the continued, uninterrupted meeting of your vascular access needs.

If you have any additional questions, please contact your Vidacare representative.

We thank you for your continued business.

Sincerely,

Stewart Strong
Vice President of Sales
Vidacare, Incorporated
